DATE: January 8, 2024

COMMENT: A population that has defending itself from the Chinese Communist takeover on a daily basis seems to be doing alright all things considered. But the country is fighting against unification already, with some of the youth of the country having a stand. To date, 83% of Taiwanese between the ages of 18 and 29 say they identify themselves as exclusively Taiwanese. That amount of youngsters thinking this way in absolute terms, will definitely be a resistance if war comes to threat the country. And Taiwan has weak spots today. For example, 27 subsea cable connections that provide internet access to Taiwan are vulnerable to a Chinese military attack. But for sure Taiwan can cut export relations with China should something big happens and protect itself considering that it has potential western allies yet to be revealed.
